Time to Plan. There will be time to listen to the radio, to enjoy a good book, to attend some agricultural meeting and make plans for another year. Now is the time to order supplies of seed, fertilizer and chemicals for weed and insect control. At this point we would like to remind our readers that Line Elevator Agents will be available in assisting the Provincial Crop Improvement Associations in the distribution of Registered and Certified Seed. Your local Line Elevator Agent is ready and willing to all time to encourage the use of pure seed since he knows that higher yields and better grades are bound to result.

Crossfield Nurse Weds In Toronto

Grace Chapel, Toronto, was the setting for a wedding recently when Miss Gladys Esther Gilchrist, R.N., daughter of Mr. J. E. Gilchrist and the late Mrs. Gilchrist of Calgary, became the bride of Mr. Donald Davis Gillies, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Gillies of Dundalk, Ont. Rev. H. Good performed the wedding ceremony.

Given in marriage by Mr. Gordon Brown, the bride was gowned in a white brocade satin and wore a halo of satin and orange blossoms which held her train-length veil. Her bridal bouquet was a cascade of red roses and white gladioli. Her only ornament was a gold locket, the gift of the bridegroom.

The bride's sister, Miss Lois Gilchrist, was bridesmaid in a gown fashioned of pale blue satin. With it she wore a blue halo and a shoulder-length veil and carried a muff of white gladioli centred with pink roses. Little Jill Brown was flower girl and wore yellow taffeta with a matching bonnet. She carried a nosegay of yellow roses and brown pom-poms.

Mr. William Gillies attended his bride's wedding and the guests were ushered by Mr. Jack Crawford and Mr. Fred Silk. During the signing of the register the organist played "Because."

A reception followed at the home of the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Brown.

Later the couple left for their honeymoon trip by motor to Muskoka Lakes and Georgian Bay. On their return, they will make their home in Toronto.

Mrs. Gillies is a graduate of the Calgary General Hospital school of nursing.

PUBLICITY

A fact which is not well known is that Russell Patterson, the illustrator, is a Canadian.

His parents lived in Ottawa. In fact, the last time I saw Russell was with his father, and he came to Ottawa for the funeral.

FANTASTIC SCHEME

Patterson and I cooked up about as fantastic a scheme as any screwball public relations man in the U.S.A. has put over. I still think it might have worked if one of the principals in the drama had not been inconsiderate enough to get arrested for embezzlement.

At that terrible stage, during the terrible stage designing; he had an interest in a Broadway show; he had a friend who had the agency for a passenger aircraft, and I was trying to come up with a scheme to describe the modern girl which would capture the public fancy as "flappers" had done. I had just made the plot, which was this:

Gladys Glad, (subsequently the wife of the late Mark Hellinger) was to "disappear." Actually she was to fly from Ottawa, and she was a member of the cast of Patterson's show, he thought he could get her to co-operate, as she was a good sport and liked a bit of publicity to boot.

Farm Gives Advice On Wintering Bees

Beekeepers may over-winter their strong colonies of bees either outside or in a cellar, reports the Dominion Experimental Farm at Brandon, Manitoba. Some kind of protection, besides a shelterbelt of trees or slatted fence, is generally given to bees when they are wintered out-of-doors. The colonies—packed singly, in pairs or in groups of four—may be wrapped with tar paper alone. Tensest and tar paper, or placed on specially constructed cases having approximately eight inches of insulating material between the hive and the outer case. The insulating material may consist of cut straw, dry leaves, sawdust or planer shavings.

Honeybees may be stored in specially constructed bee-cellars, in dug-outs, or in home basements—depending upon the number of colonies involved. Both methods of wintering honeybees require the knowledge of several well-established principles. The principles involved have been published by the Dominion Department of Agriculture and may be secured free of charge by writing the nearest Dominion Experimental Farm or Station.

CROSSFIELD CHRONICLE

Edmonton, Alberta, October 15, 1949

MAIL ORDERS MENACE SMALL TOWNS

Merchants in Alberta small towns increasingly are being challenged by a menace they do not know how to combat: inroads being made into their business by mail order houses.

Reasonably, local businessmen point out they pay taxes and salaries to their employees for support of the community. Mail order houses have no interest in the community except as a trading area, and contribute nothing of benefit, financially or otherwise, except the goods they sell.

Is there not some way, these merchants ask of making the mail order houses pay taxes to communities where they do business?

Well, from the little we know about it, the tax would be difficult to implement. At the moment we haven't time nor wit to think out a system.

But there is another way, probably just as difficult to make effective, and that is to persuade local buyers to patronize local industry. Human nature being what it is, people will purchase where they can buy cheapest. But it does seem to us that the mail order houses do have an unfair advantage in competition, not only because they are large concerns and may merchandise cheaper through bulk buying and may take small returns on large volume, but also because they may extend their trading area to many localities without the expense of overhead nor taxes.

The Post Office probably can't do anything about it; the municipalities would have difficulty finding a feasible method of taxation; and the solution is probably with local customers themselves.

If this mail order business is to be followed through to the ultimate end, if no one buys from local merchants there will be no local merchants, no salaries—no town and nobody to buy even from the mail order houses.

For our own part, we would like to hammer home: "Buy from those local merchants who patronize your local newspaper." If we can't get that you-scratch-my-back-and-I'll-scratch-yours lesson over, we would settle for:

"Buy from your local merchant. In the long run it pays."

CUT DOWN THIS APPALING WASTE

Controlled fire has been a benefactor of man. It has provided him with light and heat; by it he cooked his food. But fire can also be an enemy.

During the 10-year period ended December 31, 1948, there were 18,228 serious fires in the province of Alberta. These fires caused a loss which reached the staggering total of $19,927,648.

In those 10 years, 315 men, women and children died in Alberta as a result of fire.

This appalling situation is not improving, for in 1948 alone there were 2,285 fires which caused a property loss of over three and three-quarter millions of dollars, and brought death to 48 men, women and children—all in the province of Alberta.

In the words of E. R. Hughes, Alberta Fire Commissioner: "These figures should spur us on to make an all-out effort to reduce fire losses through proper care in handling fire. An analysis of the causes of fires and resulting loss of life over the past 20 months reveals that lighting stoves with gasoline or other petroleum products lead all the rest. This was followed by suffocation; people trapped in burning buildings; by children playing with matches; by the practice of leaving children alone in the home."

This is Fire Prevention Week. But every week of the year should be fire prevention inspired. Fires, like accidents, don't just happen, they are caused. It is estimated that 80 per cent are the result of carelessness.

While it is the fireman's business to put out fires, we all share responsibility in trying to eliminate conditions which cause them.

Everyone Has Something to Save For

A good many millions of words have been written in the past about the virtues of thrift and saving generally. Some of them have been extremely persuasive and occasionally the writer has developed his theme with a freshness and vigor calculated to fire the dullest imagination.

But there is another aspect to the question that is so obvious it may well be unappreciated if not overlooked entirely. It is the thought that civilization today would know practically nothing of the amenities it now takes for granted unless someone, somewhere had first saved some money.

Canada Savings Bonds are an outstanding example of what has been done to make it easier to save. This year a Fourth Series of these bonds is being offered to the public. To date, Canadians have made more than three million purchases of Canada Savings Bonds, representing a total value of more than a billion dollars. This year, as in the past, hundreds of thousands of us will again testify to their convenience and to the soundness of the investment they represent.

CROSSFIELD CHRONICLE

Dear Editor

Hutterites

Rockyford, Alta.

Dear Editor: Rockyford, Alta.
I don't see what was wrong about Mr. Pue's "Hutterite" story. He did a very good and accurate job. Why don't these people try to get more education? If they did they'd leave the colonies. This is Canada—1949; not Germany in the dark ages.

DISGUSTED.

Beiseker, Alta.

Dear Editor: Beiseker, Alta.
The Hutterites are good living people and you shouldn't make a joke of them. They aren't educated but they do do their share, rolling wagons around the streets like the educated college girls do, nor wear dungarees.

FAIR PLAY.

High Level Bridge

Edmonton.

Dear Editor: Edmonton.
A solution to the problem of the high level bridge that wouldn't cost so much money has occurred to me and I would like to use the column of the Sun to put it across.

Just by ripping up the lower deck and putting all the traffic on the top deck (spending thereby nothing on extended decks) why not keep the bridge open for south-bound traffic and the upper deck for north-bound traffic?

The C.P.R. tracks could be laid on the northbound street car (which is the southbound street car tracks now run) and that would leave a two-lane highway on the middle and west portions of the bridge.

Electric buses, of course, would use these roadways as some ordinary traffic.

This plan would undoubtedly cost a lot less than $1,000,000 and the east side of the structure could be reinforced with extra supports for weight of the vehicles.

NOT AN ENGINEER.

Editor's Note: Commissioners Menzies tells us the main reason is to obtain faster traffic. Two 2-lane highways are not nearly as effective as one 4-lane because the 4-lane part has to share slow traffic in the same direction.

EDITORACLES

From London, the Associated Press reports that police investigating two men who were robbing a store found that each was night watchman who had become suspicious of one another and were continually keeping an eye on each other. And that is the other's actions. The parallel, and moral, as applied to the Western Nations and the Iron Curtain countries is too obvious to be emphasized.

Our own National Research Council has pointed out that computations in connection with the atom have been in error; the U.S. has recently discovered that apparently the atomic bombs did not go off in four miles. Now scientists are of the opinion that cosmic rays are not cosmic but originate in the atmosphere changing world that the scientists were supposed to have tabbed!

Bethoven and Goethe were extravagant admirers of each other until they met (July, 1812, at Teplitz). While their reveries for each other were not very well developed, they did not get on well as persons. Would someone like to draw the moral?

Japan is calling for a meeting of President Truman and Premier Stalin to ease American differences. The atomic explosion in India has made us all more uncomfortably aware that in an atomic war they are very vulnerable. They also probably have too much to do with the thought of Hitler to wish any threat to peace at the moment. Quite a difference from the time when Japan thought she was the warlike Asia.

A scientist at the Pasteur Institute, has developed a youth serum. Just as we are not able to immunize our children for the kind of world they were going to grow up in, scientists talk about not only immunizing them for the world as it is, but for the world as it will be like it. By the way, whatever happened to this monkey gland business?

More On Hutterites—
Less On Pop, Please!

Rockyford Alta.

Dear Boss:

By this time you are probably tired of reading letters protesting against the way you express yourself about the Hutterites. Personally I thought your article tried to present a more favorable opinion rather than a purely critical.

That those who know the Hutterites best should protest so vehemently speaks well of them as persons.

Since I've been in this vicinity I've heard a whole succession of stories about their kindness and good deeds.

During the depression they sent whole wagon loads of food, some of the recipients of which later said they had no place to live in. I think that the Hutterites are probably the most giving people that a farmer who was unable to work because of the depression can find.

It is a sort of a mystery how they did this. They have no money or stories.

The Hutterite Exclusion Bill was sponsored by persons who possibly had good reasons of their own, but it was a most inhumane and discriminatory bit of legislation, entirely inappropriate for a country which prides itself on love of freedom, tolerance, and human rights. The court's decision upheld it.

I know little about the Hutterites, but I am comment on them intelligently. But one thing I may say with certainty after listening to comments of others for the past few days, is that they are not bad people in their adopted country.

Our readers agree with us in one particular at any rate. In many instances it is the Hutterites who are giving enough local news. Even local editors, who are falling down in this respect, would also agree.

The oddest part of this situation is that those who are most inclined to buy the Hutterite bill are not the ones who are most inclined to operate in this community will not cooperate in providing them with news.

Oddest part of this situation is that those who are most inclined to buy the Hutterite bill are not the ones who are most inclined to operate in this community will not cooperate in providing them with news.

Now when someone says the paper hasn't enough local news I ask if they have ever given news to the local editor.

That's about it. I know that someone reads this and feels the same way I do. I would welcome some moral support in my one-man campaign for the Hutterites.

Better still, some practical ideas of what to do about it.

Sincerely,

Your Editor.

MORBID INTEREST IN PARIS TRIALS

(Fourth Installment of the "Strangest Murder Case on Record")

The first Paris trial opened at St. John on September 29, 1921, before Mr. Justice Barr.

It is an interesting sidelight on the front page of the St. John Daily Telegraph of Sept. 29, there were three murder stories. The fact that the Paris trial had opened was only mentioned on a back page.

Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle's trial for the murder of Virginia Rappe (the charge later being reduced to manslaughter and of which he was acquitted) was of far greater interest. This was the case celebre of the decade and the evidence in the trial of the film comedian ran parallel with the Paris case in the newspapers of the Maritimes for some days.

"MORBID INTEREST"

The presiding judge remarked of the Paris case, however: "The proceedings in this session . . . are arousing more than the usual morbid interest." A murder trial was unusual in St. John but none suspected at this date how unusual this case would prove to be.

In reading the accounts of the trials over 28 years later it is difficult to see how so many people on one side or the other obviously must have been wrong.

It is easy to understand that people might become confused on certain points, even on essential points and it is also easy to understand how one or two persons might imagine they saw something they did not see; how a whole procession of people could take their oath that they had seen a man at a certain place at a certain time and just as many more swear that he was many miles away at the same time is puzzling.

CONFFLICT OF EVIDENCE

The murder occurred on Aug. 2. All evidence pointed directly to that conclusion, and Crown defence apparently accepted the fact as established. Crown witnesses swear that Paris was in St. John on Aug. 2 and 3, while defence witnesses just as positively swear that he was in Truro on both those days, a distance of 240 miles by rail, and at that time a 10 hour train journey at least.

Witnesses on both sides, in most cases, knew Paris for years. If Paris had a double—a remote possibility at the best and not seriously suggested by either side at any time—he certainly was uncannily aware of Paris' affairs from the testimony of those who claimed to have talked with him at both places on the same date.

PA'S DEFENCE

The defence was that Paris could not have committed the murder because he was in Truro on the day, and two following days after the murder took place in St. John. Paris himself testified—he took the stand at all five trials—that he went to Truro from St. John on July 24, and did not return until Aug. 4.

Crown witnesses asserted that Paris was in St. John on Aug. 2 and Aug. 3. They placed the dates because there was a large fire on the night of Aug. 2, near where they and Paris lived. On the other hand the Truro people in more than one instance had documentary evidence of the date on which an event occurred at which Paris was present.

Termed as "the No. 1 defence prospect in Canada," though ready Tim Horton signed a three-year contract on Monday with Toronto Maple Leafs. The banting rear guard of last season, St. Michael's College product, Tim, will be in the Pittsburgh Hornets training camp in Welland, Ont., on Wednesday. ### Beef By Air Cattle droving over long distances is one of the main difficulties of the Australian livestock man. But a partial answer has been found in the northwestern part of Australia by taking to the air.

An abattoir has been erected on one of the livestock stations with a mobile killing plant and refrigeration facilities. Here the cattle are slaughtered and the chilled beef flown to the northern port of Wyndham about 190 miles distant.

The method eliminates many weeks of road travel with consequent loss of condition. It has already been demonstrated that about 20 per cent more meat can be delivered in this manner, all of which is of first-class quality. These advantages, it is claimed, more than compensate for the increased cost of air freight, without increasing the price to the consumer.

The plan has met with such initial success that its extension to other isolated cattle raising areas of Australia is contemplated.

Hunters and fishermen are cautioned by Red Cross Water Safety Instructors to make sure they can remove waders and heavy garments quickly for it is very difficult to swim with extra weight.

Chili Recipes From "Canada's Kitchen"

Cabinet ministers and office boys, stenographers and livestock experts, in fact all the civil servants who work in the majestic Confederation Building in Ottawa, have been meeting with tantalizing odors as they enter the Wellington Street structure these fall days.

The aromas have been emanating from the immaculate little white room in the basement, dubbed "Canada's Kitchen," where home economists of the Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture, have been experimenting with new ways of making that favorite chili, chili sauce.

And the economists of the kitchen have come up with some ideas. Uncooked chili is one. It is actually an uncooked pickle. Another one can be cooked either on top of the stove or in the oven, a feature that keeps it out of the way and requires stirring only towards the last hour of cooking.

The recipes, complete with ad-

An Old Flower

Chrysanthemums were probably first cultivated in China and introduced from there to Japan in the eighth century. It was not until the end of the seventeenth century that they seem to have been grown in Europe.

In 1690 six varieties were grown in Holland, but they appear to have been allowed to die out, for they were not heard of in Europe until about one hundred years later. In 1780 three varieties were introduced into France, and one of these found its way to England.

During the next twenty years a number of varieties came to England direct from China and Japan, and in 1830 the first all-chrysanthemum flower show was held in that country. Varieties now available are numbered in the thousands and new ones are added to the list every year.

The tastes of the early Southern homes and their hospitable way of entertaining have many pointers that might well be adapted to present day living. The herb garden which always had a mint garden in the corner, in a moist, semi-shaded spot, furnished fresh mint the entire summer and dried leaves for winter use. It's refreshing flavor and order added sparkle to many meals. A small garden plot or even a window box will furnish space to grow it.

2 cup peas (fresh, canned or frozen)

4 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine.

Place the peas, mint, onions and a butter in a boiling water to furnish steam. Cover and cook until tender. If using frozen peas, follow directions on package adding the mint and onion to the water. When tender add butter or margarine. Serve while hot. Mushrooms added just before the peas are tender add to the flavor and appeal of the dish.

The girl was impressed.

"How truly devastating!" she exclaimed. "Does your poetry yield any returns?"

"Yes," said the young man, sighing slightly. "It practically all returns."

Green and brown is such a pretty color combination that it fascinates us to encounter it so infrequently. It is nicely used here in a handsewn coat of almond green wool with a brown belt and collar of beaver. The buttons are arranged in a novel manner, to give a triple brooch effect. The skirt is full and each side there is a corded trim at the sleeve cuffs.
